

The Truth About Human Population Decline

scritto da Neodemos | 28 Marzo 2025

With birth rates falling, the worldwide human population is getting older and smaller. According to traditional thinking, this spells a future of labor shortages, bankrupt social security systems and overall economic collapse. Before you panic about the end of life as we know it, political demographer Jennifer D. Sciubba has a thoughtful playbook for managing the new normal - including ideas on the future of work and migration - and a reminder that a resilient future relies on present-day action.
